Romulus Chamber of Commerce Sponsors Circus: A Variety of Entertainments Under One (Canvas) Roof

By Mark Lewkowicz, president, Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce

For the second year in a row, the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a special appearance of the Franzen Brothers Circus in the City of Romulus. Two 90-minute shows – one at 4:30 p.m. and one at 7 p.m. – will be specially featured at the event, which will take place on Wednesday, July 7, at the Romulus senior citizens' park (the same site used for the Romulus Michigan Week Festival in May). Parking will be accessible from Olive, south of Bibbins, only.

Tickets (good for either show) will be $5 in advance or $6 at the door. Children two and under will be admitted free.

The circus trucks will begin to arrive at around 8 a.m. on Wednesday to prepare for the shows later that day. Between 9 and 9:30 a.m., spectators will be able to see Okha the elephant pull the massive tent poles, raising the canvas high into the air to erect a tent that will seat 1,200 people by showtime! On the morning of last year's circus, many people were seated on lawn chairs and blankets, under the shade of the tall oak trees, watching this spectacular display. (There's no charge to watch the setup.)

The circus midway will once again be an impressive site. One attraction will be the petting zoo, which will open at 3:30 p.m. – one hour before the first show. Admission to the petting zoo is $1, but lots of folks will be able to enjoy the zoo at no cost thanks to free passes which have been distributed among many Romulus churches, service organizations, and businesses. Also beginning at 3:30 p.m. will be pony rides ($1 each) and elephant rides ($2 each). A concession stand will be available to serve a variety of refreshments.

Children will have a chance to win a prize at this year's circus by entering a coloring contest. Color the picture of Jellybean the Clown (copies have been distributed to the Romulus elementary schools, and are also available at Romulus IGA, Romulus Library, and the Chamber office), bring it to the circus, and hand it in as you enter the tent. Jellybean himself will award three prizes at each show. You must be present to win.

When the show begins inside the big top, you and your family will be treated to a variety of entertainment, including clowns, aerialists, magicians, elephants, lions, tigers, horses, Appaloosa ponies, camels, llamas, and more. Last year's show was excellent, and this year's performance promises to be even better. Wayne Franzen, a former industrial-arts teacher, is living his dream by presenting this circus for the twentieth year in a row.

This year also happens to mark the two-hundredth anniversary of the first circus performance in America, which occurred on April 3, 1793, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. To commemorate the event, the US Post Office has issued four stamps which feature a clown, an aerialist, a ringmaster, and an elephant.

By the following day, the circus will once again be a memory as it disappears and moves on to the next town. The Franzen Brothers Circus performs seven days a week, nine months out of the year.

Due to the overwhelming success of last year's circus, we are anticipating a large turnout for each show. The Chamber, which will receive part of the proceeds from ticket sales to use for its various community projects, will benefit most from advance-ticket sales – and you'll benefit by purchasing advance tickets, too, since they are being offered at a discounted price. No advance tickets will be available for sale on the day of the show; tickets will be available only at the circus ticket office, and only for the higher price.

Advance tickets may be purchased at the following Romulus locations: Comerica Bank, Cottage Inn Pizza, Ed's Hangar Lounge, Family Pharmacy, First of America Bank, Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce (located at the Clarion), Polka-Dot Party Pantry, Romulus City Hall (Treasurer's office), Romulus Community Schools (administration building), Romulus Hardware, Romulus Recreation Department, Romulus Video, and U.S. Federal Credit Union.

For more information about the Franzen Brothers Circus, call Karan Cantrell, Chamber secretary, at 326-4290 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Last year's Franzen Brothers Circus was well attended.

The Lighter Slice

TV – Just Do It

By Tom Shamanski

My mind is quickly sinking into TV-land's multicolored quicksand . . . and I'm feeling pretty darn good about it, too. With eyes glazed and mouth slightly ajar, I have rediscovered the numbing pleasure of watching TV until the term "brain dead" has become a distinct possibility. You see, for the past few years, I've shunned evening television, preferring instead to elevate my intellect by concentrating on my daily newspaper. Yes, I was reading the comics and the classifieds.

With the comics, I soon began thinking of all those neat little people as family members. In fact, at one point, I remember zipping off a letter to Dagwood and Blondie's son, Alexander, trying to convince him to change his like-father-like-son hairdo. Instead of those little pony-tails, I asked him, why don't you try a spiked haircut, with each hair strand sporting a different and nauseating color? Fluorescents might be good, I said.

Although I was only trying to help, Alex got pretty miffed and wrote back that he's had the same hairstyle since becoming a teenager, some 35 years ago, and he likes it just fine, thank you!

With the classified personals, I was reading things like: "Extremely beautiful woman, age irrelevant, who loves playing jacks, yachting to Cleveland, and having her teeth straightened, seeks a gentle, sensitive – yet obscenely rich – man for a meaningful and rewarding relationship, based upon current cash flow and real-estate holdings. If vested in stocks, don't call."

Well, as you can imagine, after pouring over this stuff for a couple of years, curiosity finally compelled me to answer one of these ads. Coincidentally, it was the above ad to which I responded.

Her name was Connie Cash and she was, indeed, very beautiful, as well as moderately personable. She sang and played accordion in a country band by night, and toiled as a dental assistant during the day. However, it seemed to me that she was a bit overly concerned with my financial status.

After telephoning, we met at a local Burger King restaurant to determine if we could continue this prospective relationship. From the moment that she spoke, I could easily understand Connie's interest in straight teeth, as, when she talked, there was a somewhat noisy and gritty whistle punctuating her speech. From that, I deduced that she was concerned with money because, as everyone knows, having your teeth straightened costs even more than a Presidential haircut.

We ate, chatted, and whistled a bit – but, when I told her that my financial piece of the rock lies somewhere between that of a McDonald's fry-cook and an impoverished Buddhist monk, Connie let out a long, low whistle as her face soured and sagged. Instinctively, I braced myself, as I knew that we had reached the "Farewell, My Darling, I wish you the best" part of our relationship.

Anyway, here I am, back home watching Roseanne Barr roast marshmallows and one of her kids over her gas stove. The heck with the comics and enough of the disappointing classifieds. At this point, I'm craving a healthy dose of reality – and nothing satisfies that better than TV. □

Bill Would Require BCBSM To Meet Federal Standards on Medicare Supplemental Policies

Medicare supplemental policies sold by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan would be required to meet Federal standards under a bill that was introduced on May 20 by State Representative Gregory Pitoniak (D-Taylor). Medigap policies sold by commercial insurers already have to meet these standards because of a law which was enacted during the last session.

"Someone said that, when it comes to buying a Medigap policy, 'one plus one equals too much'," said Pitoniak. "Yet it's been estimated that about 25% of seniors have more than one Medicare supplemental policy."

House Bill 4811 would require that all Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan agents find out whether prospective buyers are eligible for Medicare and, if so, whether they already have Medigap policies. If there is an existing policy, the agent would have to offer the buyer a comparison of it with the new one under consideration. These provisions would eliminate both duplicative policies and those that were unnecessary in the first place.

The bill would also require Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan to offer one Medigap policy that covers only the Medicare supplemental core benefits. Other policies containing the core benefits plus other benefits could also be sold, but they would be required to conform to the 10 policies that are set out in the standards.

"We know that some agents have taken advantage of the elderly by selling them worthless policies," said Pitoniak. "In conjunction with the bill passed last year, my bill should put a stop to this practice."

HB 4811 contains other consumer-protection measures, too, including the following.

- Medigap policies couldn't exclude certain diseases.
- Medigap policies couldn't duplicate Medicare benefits.
- There could be no waiting period or conditions for coverage required if a person applies for the policy within the first six months from his/her sixty-fifth birthday.
- Subscribers would have the right to return the policy within 30 days and receive a refund.
- An applicant would have the right to continue coverage if the application is filed within 90 days before or after his/her sixty-fifth birthday or 180 days after losing coverage under a group policy. □

Parenting "TIPS"

Work and the Single Parent

Adapted by Judy Ramsey from Taking Care of Yourself: Strategies for Single Parents, Parlay International, Emeryville, CA, © 1990

Like all working parents, single parents must juggle their family and jobs. The difference lies in the fact that they must do it alone. Here are some ideas about how to handle things if you are a single parent.

Single-parent families have to be more organized than families with two parents. There is no other adult to pick up the slack. When you're the only one responsible, you can't afford to be careless.

The first place to organize is your house. Have a good system for doing chores like laundry, shopping, meals, and cleanup. Take time to teach children how to do simple jobs before you ask them to help. Trade yard chores or repair jobs with other single parents or hire someone to do these if you can afford it.

Fine-tune your talking and listening skills so that you can get information you need from your children and baby-sitter. This means being able to ask really good questions and waiting for the answers. A breakdown in communication may signal trouble. Be on the lookout for danger signs before things get out of control.

When you get stuck, think about the things that you would like to change. Single parents often have more choices than they may realize, but their ability to think about different ways to do things may be as low as their energy level. Talk with others about how many ways a problem could be solved. Take time to daydream—during lunch, in the bathtub, or on a walk with your child. Free your mind so that you can explore what you want to do.

It may be impossible to find time alone, but try to save something for yourself. You can recharge your energy by listening to music while you drive or by reading if you take a bus. Stop for a cup of coffee; take a five-minute walk; get up 15 minutes early. Trade off baby-sitting time with other parents to get an evening off or a weekend away. Single parents may feel that they "owe" their children all their free time, but they will be better parents for taking a break.

Being the only one to raise your children sometimes lowers your sense of humor. Try to keep a healthy view of things. It's important for children to see their parents be silly and have fun. If you need to, call a friend to complain, laugh, and get support. □

Michigan Week Festival Featured Focus on the Past

Several events in the 1993 Romulus Michigan Week Festival served to remind residents of our community's past, including the parade and the Romulus Historical Society's Heritage Day program.

City of Romulus Hosts Senior Citizens' Olympics

By Marilyn Masters, senior citizens coordinator, City of Romulus

The 8th Annual Downriver Senior Citizen Olympics, which will be held in Romulus this year, is expected to attract 600 participants from the Downriver areas during the week of August 2-6, 1993.

The events will be held at various Romulus locations.

The new Romulus High School auditorium will be the staging area for Monday's opening ceremonies, with the ping-pong, softball throw, basketball shoot, frisbee toss, and volleyball events being held on the grounds immediately following the opening. Also held that day will be both the golf "closest to pin" and the pinochle competitions (Romulus Senior Center), as well as the start of the softball tournaments (Elmer Johnson Park).

The following day's events will feature the golf "best ball scramble" competition (Shady Hollow Golf Club); shuffleboard, archery, lawn bowling, horseshoes, and softball (Elmer Johnson Park); and euchre (Romulus Senior Center).

On Wednesday, there will be bridge and billiards (Romulus Senior Center), bowling (Walter's Bowling Center), and more softball (Elmer Johnson Park).

The softball tournament finals will be held Thursday (Elmer Johnson Park), as will further bowling (Walter's Bowling Center) and billiards (Romulus Senior Center) events.

An awards banquet, to be held at the Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza in Romulus, will wrap up the Senior Olympics on Friday. The banquet is open to all participants, onlookers, and interested parties. Tickets, $10 per person, are on sale at the Romulus Senior Center, 36515 Bibbins.

All Downriver men and women 50 years of age or older are invited to register and join in one or more of the competition's events.

Everyone is invited to attend the opening ceremonies, regardless of age.

For more information about the Senior Olympics, please call Marilyn Masters or Barbara Schultz at the Romulus Senior Center: 942-6852. □

Romulus High School Honors Students of the Month

By Daniel Hurst, assistant principal, Romulus High School

Over the first four months of 1993, Romulus High School honored 187 students as "Students of the Month." These students were selected by their teachers for excelling both behaviorally and academically during the month in which they were recognized.

Approximately 280 students and parents attended ceremonies honoring the students for their accomplishments. Students present at that time received a certificate of achievement and, thanks to local sponsors, a $50 savings bond. Also, by means of random drawings, 22 students received mini calculators.

The program, with the cooperation of local sponsors, instills positive expectations in our students.

It is with great pleasure that I congratulate the following students for the fine effort which led to their being recognized in this year's Students of the Month program.

Campgrounds Look Forward to 1993

More than 90% of the 198 campground operators surveyed for the AAA Michigan Commercial Campground Guide expect 1993 to be a good year, with prices virtually unchanged from a year ago.

State park officials agree, saying that 80% to 90% of the reserved sites in the Lower Peninsula were filled at least a week ahead of time for the Memorial Day weekend, although approximately 10 sites in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula had vacancies. State parks reserve up to 75% of their sites.

Last year – when inclement weather kept many campers home – State-park campers numbered 4.9 million, a nine-percent decrease from 1991.

"If the weather cooperates, 1993 should be a banner year," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan's member services director, who reported that 75% of private campsite operators expect to fill for the July 4 holiday and 62% expect to fill for Labor Day. "With more than 90,000 campsites, this state has a wide variety of locales to choose from."

The average price is $13 per night at the commercial campgrounds surveyed. Prices range from $7 to $25 per night.

State-park camping fees have increased $1 over 1992, with costs ranging from $6 for a primitive site to $14 for one with modern amenities. This does not include a motor-vehicle permit, which is $3.50 daily or $18 annually. Motor vehicle permits may be purchased at any Meijer location's sporting-goods department. Campers may charge State campground fees on VISA or MasterCard.

Erickson recommends that campers make reservations as early as possible, especially for the holidays and late July, when many automotive workers will be vacationing. □

Attention Music Lovers!

A variety of live music is coming to the Romulus Historic Park this summer!

The Romulus Historical Society and the Romulus Arts Council are combining their efforts to bring you three free Sunday afternoon concerts in the Park.

The first, to be held June 27, will feature the country-western sound of Joe Prater and the Huron Valley Express.

Then, on July 25, Benny & the Jets will play all your favorite oldies tunes.

During the final concert, on August 29, One Flight Up will perform a smoothly melodic brand of folk music reminiscent of Peter, Paul, and Mary.

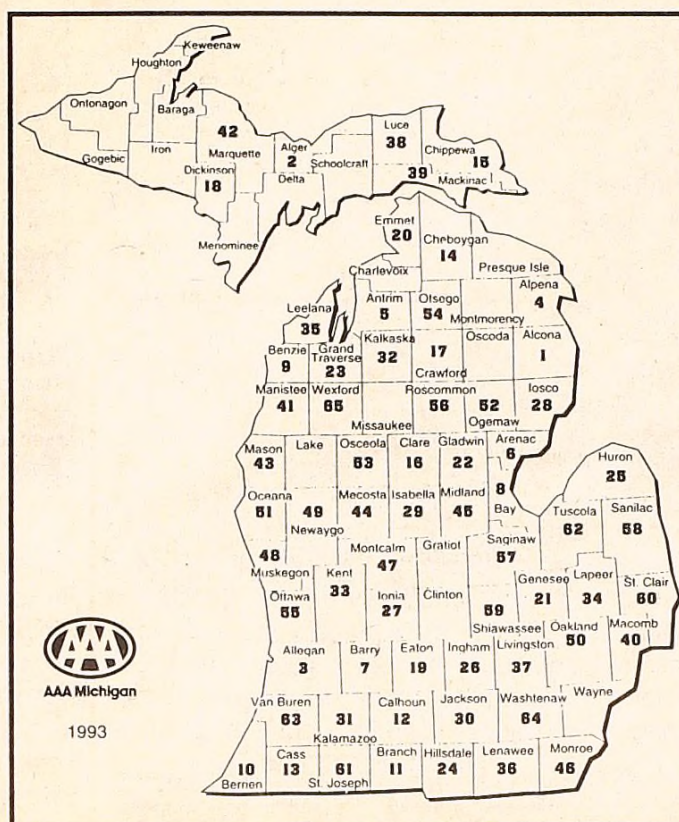

All concerts will begin at 3 p.m.

Bring your lawn chairs and blankets, and join us for an afternoon of music and fun in the sun! ☐

Barth Wins Big in Rec Races

It was a beautiful day on Saturday, May 15, and the children from Barth Elementary School were off and running at the First Annual Romulus Parks and Recreation Elementary Track and Field Competition.

In the Boys' "A" Division, comprised of fifth- and sixth-graders, Barth swept gold, silver, and bronze medals in three out of the six events: the 50- and 100-yard dashes and the long jump. The School also took first and second in two of the three remaining events: the standing long jump and the softball throw. And, to top it all off, a gold medal was won by the Barth 4x50 relay team, as well.

Barth was the overall team champion with 29 points, followed by Merriman with 23, Halecreek with 10, Wick with five, and Cory with one.

Participants included: Ray Barnes, Eric McNamee, John Penn, Henry Staple, David Wells, Rexie Wells, and Maurice Wilkins (Barth); Larry Farley, Erin Finley, and Cedric Simpson (Cory); Charles Searcy, Nathan Simms, and Melvin Stewart (Halecreek); Ronald Clark, Antoine Delaney, Dejuan Delaney, James Jackson, Joey Watson, and John Webster (Merriman); and David Adkins, Robert Adkins, Jason Linderman, Bobby Washington, and Carlen Weidemann (Wick).

In the girls' events, the competition was much closer; however, Barth, with 23 points, managed to squeak out the win – carried mainly by the "B" Division (made up of third- and fourth-graders), which took silver or better in five of six events.

Halecreek, with 19 points, and Wick, with 17, turned the three-way race for the top into quite a battle, with both schools' "A" and "B" divisions doing well. Rounding out the scores were Merriman with 10 and Cory with three.

The participants included: Christina Bouquenoy, Jackie Hamilton, Dana Nobil, and Mia Simpson (Barth); Leah Lazenby (Cory); Tishona Gregory, Jamie Normand, Crystal Rynsoksev, Christina Wojtarowski, and Sarah Ziemer (Halecreek); Samantha Lindsey, Jennifer Vit, Kenyatta Watkins, Ashley Wesson, and Heather Wright (Merriman); and Chrystal Blair, Jennifer Camilleri, Samantha Clay, Cassandra Connolly, Bridget Miller, Julie Potoczek, and Tracy Stivener (Wick).

Thanks to the participants, staff, and spectators, the First Annual Romulus Parks and Recreation Elementary Track and Field Competition was a huge success! Congratulations to all! □

Teen Talk: Health

STOPPING Teen Pregnancy

By Roseanne Simons, MSW, coordinator, Project STOPP!

Teenagers in the United States have one of the highest pregnancy rates in the western world – twice as high as that of England, Wales, France, and Canada. Every year, more than one million American teenagers – one in nine women between the ages of 15 and 19 – become pregnant.

We know that some of the consequences of early childbearing are not good for the young mother or her baby. The younger the mother, the more likely it is that she and the baby will experience health problems as a result of late prenatal care and poor nutrition. Many teen mothers are less educated than those who delay becoming mothers until their twenties or thirties; as a result, many of these women and their children are at risk of living in poverty.

According to the Wayne County Health Department, almost 16% of all live births to Romulus residents are to teen mothers – compared to 9.3% for the rest of Wayne County, excluding Detroit.

What can we – as parents, educators, and social workers – do to change this trend in teenage sexual activity in our community? Certainly, when parents and adolescents are able to communicate about sex and sexuality, we hope that the children will make the decision to postpone sexual activity. But we know that things don't always work out the way we hope that they will, despite all our efforts.

That is why we at the Romulus Adolescent Health Center are excited about our new program, funded through the Michigan Department of Public Health. This program, called Project STOPP! (Students Talk on Pregnancy Prevention), will hire 15 Romulus High School students as peer educators. After being trained by professionals in the field, the peer educators will make presentations to students at the Junior High School and the High School, and to other community groups, about the importance of abstinence for teenagers. They will also talk about issues that all teens can relate to, including peer pressure.

"Because we all tend to listen more closely to someone with whom we can relate, we are hopeful that the younger teens will listen to what their older peers have to say," said Kathleen Conway, director of the Health Center.

Project STOPP! will also include workshops and discussions with parents, as well as a student-produced video to be shown on local cable TV and in the schools.

We are now in the process of hiring our peer educators, who will receive about 30 hours of training beginning this month so that they will be ready to go to the Junior High in the fall. Project STOPP! peer educators will be paid for their participation in the program.

If you are a parent of a student who wants to become a peer educator, you will receive a letter telling you more about the program and asking your permission for your student to participate.

If you would like more information about Project STOPP!, please call the Health Center at 941-1400.

Port Side

(Bass) Season's Greetings!

By Captain Ron Dubsky, Ice Breaker II Sport-fishing Charters (313-941-3529)

Bass Season Opens

Michigan's bass season opened on May 29 this year – except on Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, where opening day will be June 19. You have read my articles on the walleye fishing in the Detroit River; well, the same waters will produce large catches of large- and smallmouth bass. Remember that, at this particular fishery, we are adjoined with our Canadian neighbors – so, before you venture out to try your luck, make sure that you have the right license.

Because of the warm-water intakes along the River, the bait fish have the entire winter to harvest and grow. This makes it a veritable feast for the bass family. Many tournament anglers have used this resource for many years, so why not try your skills on this great waterway? Between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie, there are 32 miles of bass-producing waters with numerous launch sites available.

Belleville Lake

The first of 16 consecutive Tuesday

Night Bass Tournaments was held at the DNR launch site on Belleville Lake this week (starting time is 5 p.m.; tournaments end at 9 p.m. with the weigh-in). A Bass Classic will follow the last of the tournaments.

South Street Tackle reports that the crappie are really hitting off the rocks and in the main part of the Lake. Minnows are the primary bait.

Lake Erie

When the weather permits us to fish, we are "limiting out" on large walleye in Lake Erie. The fish are found in a different location almost every trip. One day they are in nine to 12 feet of water; the next day they are found in 20 feet. Wherever the bait fish are, we find the walleye. Trolling with planer boards is still the most successful way to fish. Drifters are taking a few fish.

Lake Michigan

Sport fishermen in northern Lake Michigan should be alerted that the 1993 minimum size for lake trout above the 45th parallel, including all of Traverse Bay, is 24 inches. The size limit is not detailed in this year's fishing guide.

The minimum size in all other Great Lakes areas is 10 inches. The current limit for Lake Michigan is two trout per day; elsewhere in the Great Lakes, including connecting waters and inland lakes, the lake-trout limit is three.

The northern Lake Michigan size limit has been increased because the mortality rate has exceeded the target of 45% in recent years, according to the DNR. State officials said that Native American fishermen will also have similar reductions in lake-trout catch. □

This week's Brag Board tells the tale of two Romulus celebrities: Mikey Nicklous, manager of the Pizza Barn, and Sue Miller, manager of Romulus Tanning. Both are great fishermen!

A Point of Law

A Look at Wage Laws

By Murray A. Duncan, Jr., attorney

It has been brought to my attention that an employer in Romulus is refusing to pay wages to his employees. This article is addressed to those individuals who have not been paid wages that are due them.

First of all, an employer must pay each employee all wages earned on or before the first day of each month for all wages earned during the first 15 days of the preceding month and must pay on or before the fifteenth day of each month for all wages earned between the sixteenth and the last day of the preceding month.

Employers may pay employees on a regularly scheduled weekly or biweekly basis if:

- wages are paid on the established, regularly recurring payday, and
- such payday occurs on or before the fourteenth day following the end of the work period for which the wages were earned.

Also, an employer may pay wages monthly provided the employer pays the employee on or before the first day of the month for all wages earned during the preceding month.

In short, if there is no agreement as to when an employee is to be paid, then the employee is to be paid by the first and the fifteenth day of each month. An agreement as to a specific payday is acceptable if the agreement is, in fact, adhered to, and the employee does not have to wait more than 14 days to be paid.

Finally, a monthly pay schedule is acceptable if that is the agreement between the parties and payment is made on the first of each month for the preceding month's work.

Any employee who feels that his employer has violated the law regarding the payment of wages may file a written complaint with the Michigan Department of Labor, 1200 Sixth Street, 15th Floor, Detroit, Michigan 48226; the phone number is 256-3584.

Of course, an employee may also file a civil suit in court for any wages earned but not paid. If the amount owed is under $1,750, the employee may bring suit in the 34th District Court, Small Claims Division. This action would save the employee from attorney expenses.

The Department of Labor has the power to levy a penalty against an employer at the rate of 10% annually. The penalty would begin when a complaint is filed and would end when payment is made. Also, the Department may assess a civil penalty of not more than $1,000 against an employer who refuses to pay wages, with civil penalty being credited to the State of Michigan's general fund.

Special thanks to State Representative Gregory Pitoniak; Sheila McGinnis, Manager of the Romulus Tower; Marilyn Masters, Senior Citizens Coordinator for the City of Romulus; and Barbara Schultz, Romulus Senior Center staff member, for contributing information to this issue's "Sassy Seniors" column.

Pitoniak Sponsors Breakfast Forum

Romulus' State Representative, Gregory Pitoniak, invites Romulus seniors to attend a breakfast forum to discuss State issues of importance to senior citizens. For seniors' convenience, Pitoniak has scheduled two different programs; both programs will cover the same issues. The first will be held on Friday, June 11, at the Ford Senior Center (6750 Troy, Taylor); the second will take place on Monday, June 14, at the Romulus Senior Center (36515 Bibbins, Romulus). At each program, Pitoniak will be providing a complimentary continental breakfast beginning at 8:30 a.m., with the forum following at 9 a.m.

If you plan to attend one of these forums, please notify the appropriate center ahead of time.
